

Danderyds Sjukhus

I TRYGGA, SÄKRA HÄNDER

The ability to adjust oneself in a new situation

To know what happens

Getting an understanding of the condition

The ability to adjust oneself in a new situation

The importance of being seen and listened to

To know what happens

Getting an understanding of the condition

The ability to adjust oneself in a new situation

The importance of being seen and listened to

Possibilities of influencing one's health and one's own recovery

To know what happens

Getting an understanding of the condition

One's own responsibility

Confidence in health care staff

Dialogue creates security and satisfaction

The ability to adjust oneself in a new situation

The importance of being seen and listened to

Possibilities of influencing one's health and one's own recovery

To know what happens

Getting an understanding of the condition

One's own responsibility

Confidence in health care staff

Conclusions

Practicing person centered nursing, was an appropriate way to meet each patient's unique needs for information and participation

Only in a true partnership, between nurse and patient e.g. through person centered care, the best care in acute renal failure can be given

